

Extra Credit!!!!

facebook in History

Most of you are very familiar with Facebook. This is an opportunity for you to combine the past and the present and gain some extra points!

Task: ON PAPER, design a Facebook page for a historical figure in the chapter we are currently studying. You are going to need to look at a real Facebook page and follow the same design on your paper (The school computers block this site, so you will have to look up any Facebook pages outside of school).

Some ideas:

- Fill in the same pieces of information you would see on a real Facebook page: background, networks, current employer, hometown, etc.
- Quotes
- Favorites
- Friends
- Status postings with comments from others
- Links, Videos
- Likes
- Photos
- Games

Be creative!

You will get more points for more information: make sure it is historically accurate
Feel free to use humor and creativity—as long as it is appropriate

*Put a list of the sources you used (textbook, any other books, web sites, etc.) on the back of your paper. I will not accept a page without a list of sources!

You may do one page for every chapter we study for the rest of the year!
